ELECTIO IMMUNE.

At a private exhibition a few days ago in a small room on Broadway New York, Charles Quill, a man of twenty-two years, allowed himself to be strapped into an electric chair, similar to the one in Sing Sing prison, and a direct current of electricity drawn from a nearby feed wire was turned into his body to the amount of 1,800 volts. This is 100 more volts than are used in executions at the prison. Quill seemed to enjoy it. He endured this huge voltage, for fully a minute. During that time his assistant touched various parts of his body with an alcohol soaked handkerchief, which immediately burst into flame.

Quill asserts that electricity will not kill unless it burns, and he explains his immunity by the fact that his body contains an unusual amount of carbon. In the test through which he passed he played with electricity as though it were the most harmless thing in the world. With 1800 volts sizzling into one hand, he would light a candle, or set aglow an incandescent light with the other. He applied a piece of carbon, held between his teeth, to a similar piece attached to another wire and supplied a perfect arc light. He drew forth a current of such intensity with one finger, that he lighted a cigarette from the heat.

Quill said he first came in contact with a voltage of electricity in San Francisco, when he was employed by the gas and electric light company. He got too close to one of the dynamos, and a "shunt-off" of 2,300 volts entered his body.

"Although apparently dead," he said, "I was conscious through it all. I could neither move nor cry out. It seemed as though I was tied between two dynamos with the currents flowing through my body and burning me up, and I was powerless to help myself. When I was revived I felt no ill effects."

Quill has offered to go to Sing Sing and make a test. He says that when a man is electrocuted he is only in a comatose state and that death comes when the autopsy is held.

THE ETHEL KINRAID MURDER.

At last the police have a clue on which to work in reference to the Ethel Kinraid murder mystery in Hamilton, Ont. The provincial detectives have retained a Pinkerton man to go to Richmond, Va., to ascertain if a certain man whose name and address have been supplied, was in Hamilton on the day of the murder. It is thought this man may have had something to do with the shooting. The theory is that he bore a grudge against Florence and shot Ethel in mistake, for the two girls look very much alike. A black moustache was purchased by a man answering the Virginian's description a few days before the murder. The police say the girl under arrest is not telling all she knows. While being interviewed by detectives she collapsed under the strain. Her lover a clerical student, intervened, and placed his hand over the girl's mouth just as she was about to say something. The detective wrenched it away and a row ensued, the girl meanwhile going into a complete faint. The officers are convinced the girl would have made damaging admissions if not stopped by her clerical lover.

OBARGED WITH BIGAMY.

On a warrant sworn out by his alleged first wife, Mrs. Dorothy L. Huber, of Washington, D. C., Charles F. Huber, graduate and post-graduate of the Beethoven Conservatory of Music, of St. Louis, Mo., has been arrested at Greensboro, N. C., and is being held in that city for the Richmond authorities. Huber is alleged to have married a Miss Mansfield, in Petersburg, although knowing at the time, it is charged, that he had been divorced from his first wife. He formerly resided in Richmond. Mrs. Huber No. 1 said she would testify against her husband when the case came up for trial. Huber will be sent to Richmond immediately. He is 37 years of age and was born in St. Louis, where he was educated in his profession. He has been a director of theaters and hotel orchestras, is a solo pianist of skill, and has played a great deal in moving picture shows. He is now engaged in like work in Greensboro. The Petersburg girl whom he is alleged to have divorced is said to be with him now. It is not supposed she knew that he was, as alleged, already married.

THE SUICIDE EPIDEMIC.

Dr. Victor Meyer, of New York, told Lucille, a friend of his, on Monday, that he was too much of a gentleman to die on the street. Yesterday morning he died, as he thought a gentleman should, in his bed. G. killed him.

Herman Altshul, a former secretary of the Russian Red Cross Society, yesterday committed suicide in New York by shooting himself through the head. Discouragement at inability to find employment is said to have been com-

FAVORS COMMISSION PLAN.

The annual message of Mayor D. C. Richardson, transmitted to the Richmond City Council, recommends among other things, a change in the present form of the city government, so that the administrative functions now vested in various standing committees, appointed by the presidents of the respective branches of the Council, be put in the hands of commissions. A committee is now investigating the various forms of municipal government in force in many of the larger cities of the country, and until this committee reports, no action will be taken on the mayor's recommendation. The mayor gives as one of his reasons for the commission plan, that, under the present system, "salary grabbing" has reached a point where a halt must be called if the city intends to make any progress. The action of the mayor is considered remarkable because, two years ago, he was opposed to the commission plan of government.
